

Abbey Lincoln - Daytime Friends

Tom: G

Intro: G C G C

And he'll tell her he's working late again
 But she knows too well there's something goin' on
 She's been neglected and she needs a friend
 So a tremblin finger dials the telephone
 Lord it hurts her doing this again

He's the best friend that her husband ever knew when she's lonely

He's more then just a friend He's the one she longs to give her body to Chorus

Daytime friends and night time lovers hoping no one else discovers where they go

What they do in their secret hide away

Daytime friends and night time lovers they don't want to hurt the others

So they love in the night time and shake hands in the light of day

When it's over there's no peace of mind
 Just a longing for the way things should have been

And she's wondering why some men never find
 That a woman needs a lover and a friend

Daytime friends and night time lovers hoping no one else discovers where they go

What they do in their secret hide away

Daytime friends and night time lovers they don't want to hurt the others

So they love in the night time and shake hands in the light of day

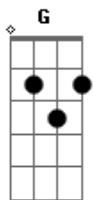

Daytime friends and night time lovers hoping no one else discovers where they go

What they do in their secret hide away

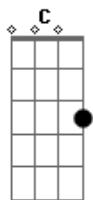

Daytime friends and night time lovers they don't want to hurt the others

So they love in the night time and shake hands in the light of day
