

Alan Jackson - You Can Always Come home

```
You can always come home
Intro: E A E Dbm A B E E A E Dbm B A
                                                                       Wherever life's road leads, you can get back
Primeira parte:
                                                                       To a love that's strong and free
                                                                       You never be alone, in your heart there's still a place
Spread your wings, don't be afraid to try
                                                                                    Dbm B
                                                                       No matter how right or wrong you've gone
The world can be hard, you gotta live a little 'fore you die \begin{tabular}{lll} E & A & E \end{tabular}
                                                                       You can always come home
So open that door, step out in the bright sunshine
                                                                       Instrumental: E A E Dbm A B E A E Dbm B A A E
                      В
Follow your heart, and remember any time
                                                                       Terceira parte:
                                                                       When I was young, my daddy said to me \frac{Dbm}{A}
You can always come home
Wherever life's road leads, you can get back
                                                                       The very same words and I took those words with me
                                                                       When I was afraid, I'd pull them out and think
To a love that's strong and free
You never be alone, in your heartu there's still a place
                                                                       Just how much they mean to me
            Dbm B
No matter how right or wrong you've gone
                                                                       Refrão:
You can always come home
                                                                       You can always come home
Segunda parte:
                                                                       Wherever life's road leads, you can get back
So pack your bags, smile and say goodbye $\operatorname{\textsc{Dbm}}$
                                                                       To a love that's strong and free \stackrel{\textstyle \mathsf{E}}{\mathsf{E}}
And chase those dreams, and when you lay down and die
                                                                       You never be alone, in your heart there's still a place
                                                                                      Dbm B A
You know that there's someone praying for you every day $\operatorname{\textsc{Dbm}}$ B {\operatorname{\textsc{A}}}
                                                                       No matter how right or wrong you've gone
Even if you never find your way
                                                                       You can always come home
                                                                       Final 2x: E A E Dbm A B E A E Dbm B A A E
