

Alec Benjamin - The Wolf And The Sheep

```
Now she's crying
Intro: F Bbm Gb Db F
                                                               'Cause she's not dying
Everybody has to get older
    Gb
Even jenny
                                                               Silly little girl who tried to live forever
She's just nineteen
                                                               To live forever
Young and naive
                                                               Gave away her soul to buy a bit of pleasure
She wants to find a way to be endless
                                                               Oh the bitter pleasure
Fight the science
                                                               Wicked little boy who tried to steal her treasure
And defiance
                                                               For the bitter pleasure
And be timeless
                                                                Now their cursed forever
                                                               Cursed together
Silly little girl who tried to live forever
to live forever
                                                                  And if you could see
                                                                           F Bbm
Gave away her soul to buy a bit of pleasure
                                                               The look in her eyes
Oh the bitter pleasure
                                                               The wolf wore the sheep
Wicked little boy who tried to steal her treasure
                                                               As a perfect disguise
For the bitter pleasure
                                                               And she can't believe
Now their cursed forever
                                                               That she fell for his lies
                                                               He promised forever
Cursed together
                                                               But she never knew the price
 And if you could see
                                                               He promised forever
The look in her eyes
                                                                              Ab
                                                               But she never knew the price
The wolf wore the sheep
                                                               He promised forever
As a perfect disguise
                                                               But she never knew the price
And she can't believe
                                                               Bbm Db
That she fell for his lies
                                                               Price
He promised forever
                                                                  And if you could see
But she never knew the price
                                                               The look in her eyes
He promised forever
                                                               The wolf wore the sheep
              Ab
But she never knew the price
                                                               As a perfect disguise
He promised forever
                                                               And she can't believe
But she never knew the price
                                                               That she fell for his lies
 And as she got a little bit older
                                                               He promised forever
      Gb
Look at jenny
                                                               But she never knew the price
                                                                               Gb
Now she's ninety
                                                               He promised forever
                                                                              Ebm
Still looks nineteen
                                                               But she never knew the price
                                                                              Dh
And all she know to do is surviving and
                                                               He promised forever
Staying alive and
                                                               But she never knew the price
```

Acordes

