

Alex Turner - Glass In The Park

Tom: C
Intro: C

There's ^Cglass in the park Darling, I can't help but keep making appointments to sweep beneath the climbing frame If the sun's in your eyes I'll tighten your blindfold, baby Don't worry your foot won't get cut strut carelessly

^{Dm}When you say that you need me tonight
I can't keep my feelings in disguise the white parts of my eyeballs illuminate

^FI'll wait for you
As if I'm waiting for a storm to stop ^{Dm}I've heard them talking about how I'm gonna put you off

^CThere's glass in the park and now that I'm up off my knees I've picked up the speed to jump your palaces

And I shoot through the night And suddenly all those once lost concoction's froth and chase the day away

^{Dm}When you say that you need me tonight
I can't keep my feelings in disguise
the white part of my eyeball illuminate

^FAnd I'll wait for you
As if I'm waiting for a storm to stop
^{Dm}I've heard them talking
about how I'm gonna put you off

^FYou tell me, how can I put you off when you're a matter of urgency?
I've got a million things that I need to do, but they're all secondary

^FMake sure you're not followed And meet me by the death balloon ^{Dm}Paraslene woman, I'm your man on the moon And like a grain of diamond dust, you float and my devotion's outer, crust... cracks
