

Alice In Chains - The Killer is Me

Tom: A yeah

Alright. I really like the weird feel to this song. It's kind of.... you know.... weird. I start over and get over it...

Anyway, i've spent a pretty long time figuring out the little details in this song. But still, there some parts i'm not sure of. Verse 2: Same as the first.

Here's my version. Chorus 2: Same as the first, except that guitar 2 starts like this: E like for most AIC songs, guitars must be tuned 1/2 step down.

Main Riff. Then play the main riff a couple of times and that's it !

A                      ?????

After a couple of times, when the band comes in, the second guitar plays something like this... LYRICS
Don't need a gun, pointed at me
Don't need to run, killer is me
Killer is me

A

Or something like this...

A

I'm not too sure about these parts. I think he improvises most of the time. Let things be

But it's close enough.

Chorus Oh yeah, can i start over ?
Oh yeah, can i start over ?
And get over it

Guitar 1: E Gb So the sun, shines upon me
Having fun, killer is me

yeah i'll start over killer is me
Killer is me

and then... Oh yeah, can i start over ?
Oh yeah, can i start over ?
And get over it

F7M

and get over it.... Let things be

Guitar 2: E Gb OK, so this is how close i can get to the real thing...

yeah I start over If somebody has a better way of playing it, please post it.
Send me all corrections, i'll be glad to recieve them.
