

The All-American Rejects - The Wind Blows

Intro: C Am G F
                                                                I'll leave when the wind blows
                                                                You can scream there's just echoes
I've got to breathe
                                                                Pass outside of your window
You can't take that from me
                                                                You'll be sad that you let me go
Cause it's all that you left that's mine
                                                                I'll leave but just know
You had to leave
                                                                [Ponte]
And that's all I can see
But you told me your love was blind
There are times
                                                                As I lay in solitude
                                                                Oh What's a boy supposed to do
You're so impossible that I should sign a waiver
And you will find
                                                                I Shake the very thought of you
Someone worth walking on when you ask me to go
                                                                Me together, I remember
                                                                Late nights when I stayed up late
                                                                All I do is wait and wait
I'll leave when the wind blows
                                                                Your never coming home to me
Take a breath and there it goes
                                                                That's the hardest thing to see
I'll be outside of your window
                                                                I got to breathe
I'll pass by but I'll go slow
                                                                You can't take that from me
I'll leave when the wind blows
                                                                We can finally say we're through
There was a day
                                                                [Refrão]
You threw our love away
                                                                I'll leave when the wind blows
Then you passed it to someone new
                                                                Take a breath and there it goes
You wanna stay
                                                                I'll be outside of your window
But since you wanna play
                                                                I'll pass by but I'll go slow
We can finally say we're through
                                                                I'll leave when the wind blows
There are times you're so impossible and you ask me to go
                                                                You can scream there's just echoes
[Refrão]
                                                                Pass outside of your window
I'll leave when the wind blows
                                                                You'll be sad that you let me go
Take a breath and there it goes
                                                                I'll leave but just know
I'll be outside of your window
                                                                And everywhere you ever go
                                                                                        Fm
I'll pass by but I'll go slow
                                                                You'll feel when the wind blows
