Tune Gtr to B
Intro: Blast (as near as i can figure it)
                                                                -Riff C 4 times
Guitar 2
                                                                Note: Guitar 1 - Riff A is faint underneath Riff F
Riff A
                                                                Guitar 2 (2 times - listen for rhythm)
Guitar 1 ONLY (main riff of song)
                                                                RIff Played over solo
2nd Intro
                                                                Guitar 2 (No... that's not a typo) play twice Guitar 2 (played shortly after intro over gtr1)
                                                                then guitar 2 play riff E, Guitar part 1
                                                                until solo ends and both guitars play riff {\sf E} afterwards play Riff D - Guitar 2 plays part 1 only Note: Riff A continuosly played until further notice Guitar 2 changes over Riff A then basically back to Riff F - Guitar 2 and Riff {\bf A} for guitar 1, but played slower until fade
3rd intro blast thing (leads into riff B )
Guitar 2
                                                                Any comments or suggestions appreciated
