

Antimatter - Too Late

I lift my head as the motorway
Lights retrieve their thread

Hanging on to me
A line of red is all I see

I wipe my eyes
And the radio takes me by surprise
Singing songs to me

It tells us how were meant to be
Too late, too late, too late to drive away
Leaving a trail in the pouring rain
Too late, too late, too late to drive away

I wipe my eyes and the passing lights

Consume the skies
Racing over me
A line of red is all I see

So I revive the cigarette who's light had died
Breathing into me

Her silver smoke it talks to me
Too late, too late, too late to drive away
Leaving a trail in the pouring rain
Too late, too late, too late to drive
And I don't need no time

Em
Lost somewhere in this great divide
Taken by chance and racing here instead
And I don't need no time
With shadows cast from fading lights
Taken by chance and racing here instead

Hello, hello, hello, hello, hello
Hello, bye, bye
Hello, hello, hello, hello, hello
Hello, bye, bye
Hello, hello, hello, hello, hello
Hello, bye, bye
Oooh

Oooh
Oooh
Oooh
Oooh
Oooh
Oooh
Oooh
Oooh

There's some will somewhere
There's some will somewhere
There's some will somewhere
Of that much I'm sure
Some will somewhere
