

Artista Desconhecido - Step It Out Mary

Tom: F
Intro: Dm C Dm C Dm C Am Dm

In the village of Kilgory, there's a maiden young and fair
Her eyes shine like diamonds, she has long and golden hair
Then a countryman came riding, up to her father's gates
Mounted on a milk-white stallion, he came at the stroke of eight

So step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Step it out, marry, if you can
Step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Show your legs to the countryman

I have come to court your daughter, Mary of the golden hair
I have gold and I have silver, I have goods beyond compare
I will buy her silks and satin and a gold ring for her hand
I will buy for her a mansion, she'll have servants to command

So step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Step it out, marry, if you can
Step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Show your legs to the countryman

Kind sir I love a soldier, and I've pledged to him my hand
I don't want your gold or silver, I don't want your house or land
Mary's father spoke up sharply: You will do as I command,
You'll marry him on Sunday and you'll wear that wedding band

So step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Step it out, marry, if you can
Step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Show your legs to the countryman

In the village of Kilgory there's a deep stream flowing by
On her wedding day at midnight she drowns with her soldier boy
In the cottage there is music, you can hear her father say
Oh step it out, Mary, my fine daughter, Sunday is your wedding day

So step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Step it out, marry, if you can
Step it out, Mary, my fine daughter
Show your legs to the countryman
