

Bethel Music - Victory Is Yours

```
Tom: A
                                                               God, all-powerful, all-powerful
                                                                 We pull down heaven
Our fight is with weapons unseen
                                                                 With shouts of praise
Your enemies crash to their knees
                                                               God, all-powerful, all-powerful
As we rise up in worship
                                                                 You roar like thunder
When trials unleash like a flood
                                                                 Nothing can tame
The battle belongs to our God
       D
                                                               God, all-powerful, all-powerful
As we cry out in worship
                                                                 We pull down heaven
Gbm
 The victory is Yours
                                                                 With shouts of praise
You're riding on the storm
                                                               God, all-powerful, all-powerful
Your name is unfailing
                                                                 The victory is Yours
 Though kingdoms rise and fall
                                                               You're riding on the storm
Your throne withstands it all
                                                               Your name is unfailing
        D
Your name is unshaken
                                                                 Though kingdoms rise and fall
What hell meant to break me has failed
                                                               Your throne withstands it all
Now nothing will silence my praise
                                                               Your name is unshaken
I will cry out in worship
                                                                 You roar like thunder
The walls of the prison will shake
                                                                 Nothing can tame
The chain-breaking King will rise to save
                                                               God, all-powerful, all-powerful
As we cry out in worship
                                                                 We pull down heaven
 The victory is Yours
                                                                 With shouts of praise
Youâ∏⊓re riding on the storm
                                                               God, all-powerful, all-powerful
                                                               (DEGbmA)
(DEGbmE)
Your name is unfailing
 Though kingdoms rise and fall
Your throne withstands it all
                                                                 The victory is Yours
             D
Your name is unshaken
                                                               You'□□re riding on the storm
       Gbm A
Oh, it's unshaken
                                                               Your name is unfailing
                                                                 Though kingdoms rise and fall
 You roar like thunder
                                                               Your throne withstands it all
 Nothing can tame
                                                                E D
                                                               Your name is unshaken
```

Acordes

