

Brandi Carlile - Follow

```
You up and none of this will matter
                          tom:
                                                                  Fm C Fm
                                                            Will matter anymore ooooooo
                                                   Em
Follow your heart and see where it might take you
                                                            [Refrão]
Don't let the world outside there break you
                                                            I feel the rain coming down
They know not who you are inside
                                                                 G7
                                                            It reminds me of who I used to be
      Fm
They have never felt your hell
                                                                                G
                                                            But now that's nothing more
     Fm
Don't ever let them crack
                                                                  Cm
                                                            Then a memory
Hold out I know you feel it getting cold out
                                                            C Em C F Fm C Fm C Fm
                                                                        00000000
Without the blanket for your soul now
                                                            [Refrão]
Before you know it you'll be frozen Fm C
                                                            I feel the rain coming down
                                                               G7
You have to see this through
                                                            It reminds me of who I used to be
There's no one here but you
                                                            But now that's nothing more
[Refrão]
                                                                 Cm
                                                            Then a memory
I feel the rain coming down
                                                            Follow your heart and see where it might take you
  G7
It reminds me of who I used to be
                                                            Don't let the world outside there break you
  Cm
                  G
But now that's nothing more
                                                            They know not who you are inside
    Cm
Then a memory
                                                            They have never felt your hell
                                                                  Fm
                                                            Don't ever let them crack
Don't go, to sleep and cry because tomorrow
                                                            Your shell
If you let it it will swallow
```

Acordes

