   Album: Count Your Blessings

Tabbed By: Katazuki M. (Octavius)                                                                       ....            ....

Tuning: Drop C

Yeah Yeah Yeah i know that the song is in Drop B. Okay? I play          . . . .   .     ..  ........
a RR3 with a floating and i dont feel like adjusting my guitar for an hour just to tune it to B. Screw that. If                                            . . . .   .     ..  ........          .
are any kind of guitarist then you can pretty much adjust it to fit B from C its only                                              !!!!!!!!!!!!!MOVE!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

hang of it.                                                         ..  ....... . . .   .     ..  ........

  ....   ....   ....                                                ..

                                                                    99999999999999991111111111111112121313131313------|

  ....   ....   ....    . . . . . .

                                                                    99999999999999991111111111111112121313131313------|
  ....   ....   ....

  ....   ....   ....    . . . . . .                                  and there you have it. the end part has the right notes but the timing is a bit off should be able to figure out when to switch from like
  ....   ....   ....                                               12121212121212 to 1313131313131313
                                                                    what not. and the 1111111 are elevens duh!

                                                                    hope you enjoy!

                         ....            ....                       . palm mute
                                                                     pich harmonic (in the begining i use natural harmonics)
                                                                    / slide down the neck
                                                                    \ slide up the neck
                                                                      pull up on whammy
                         ....            ....                       v push down on whammy

                                                                    p.s. sorry its so long but i dont really know how to do the whole x4 and what not thing
