

Britney Spears - Shattered Glass

```
Tom: C
                                                                Glass, glass, glass
Ha ah
                                                                Are you havin' trouble focusing through out the day?
                                                                Do you find yourself still calling my name?
  Em
                                                                Do you wish you could rewind time and take it back?
Ha ah
                                                                I bet you realized that she ain't half the woman I am
  F
Ha ah
                                                                Was it really worth it?
  G
Ha ah
                                                                Was she everything
Ha ah
                                                                That you were lookin' for?
                                                                Feel like a man
Did I wake you?
                                                                I hope you know that
Were you sleeping?
Were you still in the bed?
                                                                You can't come back
Or is a nightmare keeping you up instead?
                                                                 'Cause all we had
Oh baby, are you feeling guilty for what you did?
                                                                Is broken like shattered glass
If you think you're hurting you ain't seen nothing yet
                                                                You're gonna see me in your dreams tonight \begin{tabular}{ll} Em \end{tabular}
Was it really worth it?
                                                                My face is gonna haunt you all the time \mathsf{F}
Was she everything
                                                                I promise that you gon' want me back
That you were lookin' for?
                                                                When your world falls apart like shattered glass
                                                                       G Em Am
           Αm
                                                                Glass, glass, glass, F
Feel like a man
I hope you know that
                                                                Gla-gla-gla glass,
                                                                                      Em
                                                                           G
                                                                Eh-eh-eh-eh- glass, glass
You can't come back
'Cause all we had
                                                                Ha ah
Is broken like shattered glass
                                                                Ha ah
You're gonna see me in your dreams tonight
                                                                Ha ah
                 Em
My face is gonna haunt you all the time
              F
I promise that you gon' want me back
                                                                Ha ah
                     Em
When your world falls apart like shattered glass
                                                                Ha ah
    G Em Am
                                                                   Em
                                                                Ha ah
```

Acordes

