

Tom: A

Cake - Haze Of Love

```
Album: Motorcade of Generosity
                                                                           Haze of love.
I think this sounds best with bar chords --
                                                                           For days and days, and days,
D - X57775
A - 577655
                                                                            I'm in a haze of love.
If you strum creatively, you can get it to sound pretty cool. Also, for the solo make sure that you LISTEN TO THE SONG for the timing. If you know the song the solo should sound pretty good. A better guitar player could probably tab it more efficiently, so please feel free to modify this.
It's three o'clock in the morning,
Or maybe it's four.
                                                                           Or maybe it's six.
I am thinking of you,
                                                                           I am sick of your lies.
Wondering what I should do,
But I'm finally cutting through this haze.
                                                                           Haze of love.
It's four o'clock in the morning,
Or maybe it's five.
I think I'm alive,
And I think I'll survive.
                                                                            I'm in a haze of love.
I'm finally cutting through this haze of love.
Haze of love.
                                                                            -Blake
For days and days and days,
I'm in a haze of love.
                                                                            interpretation |
Yeah you don't love me like I love you.
                                                                            | of the song. You may only use this file for private study,
                                                                           scholarship, |
Although you pretend,
                                                                            or research.
I can see this will end.
                                        D Acordes
```

It's five o'clock in the morning, I am sick of your tricks. I'm finally cutting through this haze of love. For days and days and days, For days and days and days, For days and days and days, Feedback always appreciated... | This file is the author's own work and represents their

I'm finally cutting through this haze of love.

