

Casting Crowns - One More Song For You

```
Intro: A D E D
[Primeira Parte]
 Staring at this old piano
Playing through the memories that it holds
Singing through the stories that it's told
And all the prayers that have been lifted
The leaps of faith, the giants slain
Desperate cries, and broken praise
[Pré-Refrão]
Have all the songs been sung?
Is there still room for one?
Maybe one more hand in the air saying, "You are holy"
One more shattered heart singing, "You are good"
Maybe one more voice crying out for mercy
One more hungry soul declaring, "You're enough"
As long as there's breath in me
Lord, there will always be
One more song for You
One more song for You
[Segunda Parte]
 What can I offer You but weakness?
All my life I tried to hide
You brought it all into the light
 I'm still amazed that You would choose me
If You can use the least of these
```

Acordes

Then there is no one You can't reach [Pré-Refrão] In a world that's lost its song Show them there's still room for one Maybe one more hand in the air saying, "You are holy" One more shattered heart singing, "You are good" Maybe one more voice crying out for mercy One more hungry soul declaring, "You're enough" Gbm As long as there's breath in me Lord, there will always be one more song [Ponte] With no one here but You to listen My heat is bursting at the seams Out of all the songs I've lifted What I truly hope to see Is one more broken life made whole One more prodigal brought home What better way to praise Your name and majesty Than one more hand in the air saying, "You are holy" One more shattered heart singing, "You are good" Maybe one more voice crying out for mercy One more hungry soul declaring, "You're enough" As long as there's breath in me Lord, there will always be One more song for You One more song for You