

Chloe & Halle - Wonder Was She Thinks Of Me

But it's not ever with me
                              tom:
                 G
                                                                   [Refrão]
            [Primeira Parte]
                                                                   So tell me, tell me, baby I know this is crazy
 Am
I wonder what she thinks of me
When you're coming home
                                                                   You've done this before, so
I know that she smells my?perfume?under your cologne
                                                                   Who are you to judge me? Me?
I?wonder what she thinks of me
                                                                   It's never wrong when you're in love
             Dm
When?you stay awake
                                                                   So tell me, tell me, baby
After you make love to her, but I'm still on your brain
                                                                   I know this is dangerous
                                                                   You've done this before, so
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                                   Who are you to judge me? Me?
I'm not the jealous type, not like the other guys
                                                                   It's never wrong when you're in, you're in love
I wish you all the best, I'll help you pick her dress
                                                                   [Ponte]
And you can both go to Paris, you're livin' the lavish
I'm actually happy for you
                                                                   (0h-oh-oh)
[Refrão]
                                                                   (0h-oh-oh)
                                                                   (Oh-oh-oh)
So tell me, tell me, baby
I know this is crazy
                                                                   (0h) Love
You've done this before, so
                                                                   [Refrão]
Who are you to judge me? Me?
                                                                   So tell me, tell me, baby
It's never wrong when you're in love
                                                                   I know this is dangerous
                                                                   You've done this before, so
[Segunda Partel
                                                                   Who are you to judge me? Me?
I wonder what she thinks of me
                                                                   It's never wrong when you're in, you're in love
                    Dm
When she sees that mark on your neck
Oh, no, I didn't mean to go that far
                                                                   It's never wrong when it feels right
I wonder what she thinks of me
                                                                        Α7
                Dm
                                                                   I'll hold you close and pretend you're mine
When she sees my name on your phone screen
                                                                   I'll be the sun against your skin
You drop everything just for me
                                                                   I'll be there when she's not listening
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                                   You can call me crazy, boy
                                                                   Oh, yeah, we'll both be crazy, boy
You know behind the scenes, you tell me everything
                                                                   Tell me you love me 'cause I just wanna be your baby
I know you don't forget how much you needed me
                                                                   Well, that's the price I've gotta pay
And while you two enjoy Paris, your lovin' is careless
                                                                   I wonder what she thinks of me
