

City And Colour - Silver And Gold

Tom: G
                                                      Colours were drained straight from the sky
                                                      And nothing living had survived

                                                      The mountains were merely removed from the earth
                                                      Silver and gold had lost all its worth

Last night I dreamt that they dropped a bomb
Oh the sea ran dry and the winds had calmed
                                                      I woke from the dream in a cold, cold sweat
Skyscrapers fell, and crumbled to dust,
                                                      I was full of doubt and deep regret,
Their skeletons of steel were covered in rust
                                                      For suddenly it was all so clear to me;
                                                      There was nothing left in which to believe
And everything I loved and feared
