

Cozy - To Let Go

Tom: G
Intro: G Em C D

Well, the moon made your mother
The sun was your brother
Your son was no other than the mast or the rudder
You never could see him
Or others believe him
The soil or the sea then the better the freedom

Well, you were the one that I saw
When I looked for the light on the shore
Or the steam in the thaw

The ship that sailed in just as I
Was about to let go
Oh, about to let go
About to let go, oh
The ship that sailed in just as I
Was about to let go

( G Em C D )

Well, the sand was your sister
The ocean your mistress
The clouds lived on dreams
That you had and your wishes
The shells spoke for ages
Through torn diary pages
And the sea life could see right through the shifting sensations

Well, you were the one that I need
When I found out the prisoners were gone
And the ghosts were all freed
The walls that once held us all tight
Were about to let go

Oh, about to let go,
About to let go, oh
The walls that once held us all tight
Were about to let go
( G Em C D )

Well, the trees fell like feathers
And carved out like leather
They slipped to the bottom of unideal weather
We crawled through the forest
The sea had then told us
To hold all our weapons
Until they had warned us about

The family of stars that cover your heart
The blanket of moon dust about to depart
The scent of your trees when you start
To sing the truth out

And you were the one that I need
When I found out the prisoners were gone
And the ghosts were all freed
The walls that once held us all tight
Were about to let go

And you were the one that I saw
When I looked for the light on the shore
Or the steam in the thaw
The ship that sailed in just as I
Was about to let go
Oh, about to let go
About to let go, oh
The ship that sailed in just as I
Was about to let go
