

David Byrne - God Draws Straight

tom:
 As I left my house, as I walked out today
 Thought I walked out my marriage. Thought I walked out on grace
 As the dawn it was breaking at the end of the street
 I didn't know what would happen, didn't know what I'd see
 I saw two transit buses blocked the road on our side
 Saw a couple of joggers who chanced to run by Saw some soldiers come out and they mixed with the crowd
 Tears came to my eyes we're just walking around

Chorus
 And there're so many people - Everybody is here!
 I saw the girls from the office
 I saw those guys from the street
 You might think you are lost, but then you will find
 That god draws straight, but with crooked lines

Verse 2
 I saw a matron in white, her face lifted to heaven
 Saw nuns on their knees and some who were weeping
 Saw a middle-aged man and government clerk
 An Afromestizo held his rosary up
 I saw nobody leave, I didn't feel fear or terror
 It felt like a movie, like the end of an era
 Nobody got hurt and nobody died

I'll remember this day, I'll remember this time
 Chorus
 And there're so many people - Everybody is here!
 I saw the girls from the office
 I saw those guys from the street
 You might think you are lost, but then you will find
 That god draws straight, but with crooked lines

Verse 3
 As I turned on my walkman, and all I could hear -
 Every station was Marcos, he's on every TV
 An appliance store window he fills every screen
 Then the TVs went blank and his face disappeared
 Then the darkness it thickened
 There was no time for choices
 Half blind I ran, I was guided by voices
 When the choppers took off leaving Malacañang
 We knew it was over knew it was the end

Chorus
 And there're so many people - Everybody is here!
 I saw the girls from the office
 I saw those guys from the street
 You might think you are lost, but then you will find
 That god draws straight, but with crooked lines
 Yea, god draws straight, but with crooked lines
