 Em     C                      A7
Ooooh, listen to the singers tap
                       G        A7
There is sad dreams hanging about it
Em7          C                           A7
All for the gain of the wallet of the fat man
   G                   A7
I don't want to be a bad man
  Em7                       C
'Cause I'll stand with my pride in my pocket
       A7                  G       A7       Em7
But I won't rely it for them to knock it down
 Em7    C                     Em7   F   G
Ooooh, listen to the singers tap

      C              G
But, forty days and forty nights
 A7                Em7
'Til I'll get to where I'm going
C            G               A7
A hundred stairs a million miles
C              G                  A
 But I won't trade the silver plate
          Em
For some pyrite promise
C            G
If it ain't real
                    A7
It ain't worth my sound, no way to worth mine

Em      C          A   G     Em
To the royalty coming oooh, oooh
                     A7
Perhaps I'm just a number
    Em         A7
But even as a number
 Em               G
With a value you won't discover
A7       Em           C          A
I'm not sold by your royalty at all
       sl    sl
Em7   F   G
No, No

  C             G
Forty days and forty nights
A7                Em7
'Til I'll get to where I'm going
C            G               A
A hundred stands a million miles
C             G               A
But I won't trade the silver plate
          Em
For some pyrite promise
C            G
If it ain't real
                    A7
It ain't worth my sound, no way to worth mine

( E  Em  A  E  Em  A )

                   Em7   A7     Em7  A7
It ain't worth my          time

        C              G
Ooooh, forty days and forty nights
 A                 Em7
'Til I'll get to where I'm going
C            G               A7
A hundred stands a million miles
C             G                  A
 But I won't trade the silver plate
         Em7
For some pyrite promise
C            G
If it ain't real
                    A7                    Em7
It ain't worth my sound, ain't worth my time
