

Dodie Clark - Just Fine

tom:
Capostrate na 5ª casa

I wrote him a letter
I cried in the bath
I called my mother
And lay in the dark

i took down the pictures, and I Taught myself to breathe
And I hear he?s doing just fine
Without me

I catch the daydreams before the hope settles in I welcome the waves because I know I won?t win

Oh I?d never wish this feeling
On anyone, but him

I hear he?s doing just fine

Perhaps the problem lies in The double load I bear cause I ripped myself apart and you just Stood there

I?m counting the mornings
I wait to feel well
I might not feel quite as bad
But I can?t really tell and I know that I?ll be okay but it?s pretty far from a breeze

And I hear he?s doing just fine
It?s breaking me he isn?t mine but at least he?s doing just fine

Without me
Well at least he?s doing just fine
Without me
