                                                                Tell me that we're still too young,
Capostraste na 3ª casa
Breathe air you're not used to, tread floors you don't fall that we're still too young and I'll hold my tongue

                                                                Until you see me in your dreams
Make waves...
You crash a symbol hard Follow no one, always play the wrong
                                                                We'll stay awake beneath the trees
                                                                We'll watch the buildings turn to dust
Waste days, in foreign places
                                                                A sky of diamonds just for us
Shed lights, on your better side
                                                                You are the risk I'll always take
Reassure me that you'll wait for me, wait for me as long as it
                                                                The only branch I'll never break
And I'll hold my breath, I'll hold my breath
                                                                Those fears we'll blow them all way, we'll blow them all away
 Until you see me in your dreams
                                                                I'm here, I'm here to save you
WE'll stay awake beneath the trees
                                                                No fall, I will swim to save you
We'll watch the buildings turn to dust
                                                                I'm here, I'm here to save you
A sky of diamonds just for us
                                                                No fall, I will swim to save you
 You are the risk I'll always take
 The only branch I'll never break
                                                                Until you see me in your dreams
Those fears we'll blow them all way, we'll blow them all away
                                                               We'll stay awake beneath the trees
                                                                We'll watch the buildings turn to dust
Fight fires in your best clothes, touch skin with your eyes
                                                                A sky of diamonds just for us
Chase thunder with the volume down
                                                                You are the risk I'll always take
Pack a suitcase, wonder to the next town
                                                                The only branch I'll never break
Force quit, on your losing streak
                                                                Those fears we'll blow them all way, we'll blow them all away
