```
Tom: C
                                                              And I felt so confident
Once/ was enough
                                                              To see my destiny /by your side
To know that my love
                                                              As dedicated and good lover
Grew like a beautiful hummingbird
                                                              Surely time has sealed us
                                                                                                         Am
                                                              With the most perfect love I give you
Fascinated in pure content
In the seductive color of her beauty
                                                              (CGDmC)
                                                              And that is why, to know you
And that's /how I kept it
The flame of a burning star
                                                              Every day will make me happy
Warming up my contented passion
                                                              Our history will write in chalk
Not to let me die suddenly
                                                              I will say in beautiful letters what I did
                                               Am
Away from your arms, your embraces
                                                              To have you forever
(CGDmC)
                                                              In times when I wanted you
                                                              (CGDmC)
That's why I want to meet you
In some mild dusk
                                                              And that is why, to know you
To give you the expected kiss of mine
                                                              Every day will make me happy
That is why my noble desire
                                                              Our history will write in chalk
Will not suffocate your live
                                                              I will say in beautiful letters what I did
At the beginning of the surrounding dusk
                                                              To have you forever

                                                              In times when I wanted you
