

The Everly Brothers - Born Yesterday

Tom: G

Living in the city where the walls have ears
 People judge you by the words they hear
 Shake their heads while they chew your name
 And then they write it on a wall

People see you and they turn their heads
 Whisper words you might have said
 Point to a spot where you may have bled
 Then they write it on a wall

He lost his mind today she threw his clothes away
 The love they thought would last just flew away

She lost her mind today he threw her ring away
 They act as if they were born yesterday
 And I wonder whose heart hurts the worst
 And who knows whose heart was broke first

No one gives them the love they need
 Or helps them through their time of grief
 After all it could be you or me
 We're just human after all

They lost their minds today they threw their love away
 They act as if they were born yesterday
 They lost their love today they threw it all away
 They act as if they were born yesterday

Acordes

