                                                               Then whats the point of living life if it just contradicts?
                                                               (Ah!)

                                                               I felt the darkness as it tried to pull me down (pull me down)
I heard a knock upon my door the other day
                                                               The kind of dark that haunts a hundred year old house
I opened it to find death staring in my face
                                                               I wrestle with my thoughts I shook the hand of doubt
The feel of mortal stalking still reverberates
                                                               Running from my past I'm praying feet don't fail me now
Everywhere I go I drag this coffin just in case
(Bm Gb G D Bm Gb G Gb)
                                                               I've lost my god damn mind
                                                               It happens all the time
My bodies tremblin' sends shivers down my spine
                                                               I can't believe I'm actually meant to be here
Adrenaline kicks in shifts into overdrive
                                                               Trying to consume
Your secrets keep you sick your lies keep you alive
                                                               The drug in me is you
Snake eyes every single time you roll with crooked dice
                                                               And I'm so high on misery
I felt the darkness as it tried to pull me down (pull me down) Can't you see?
The kind of dark that haunts a hundred year old house
                                                               (Bm Gb G

                                                                           D
I wrestle with my thoughts I shook the hand of doubt
                                                               I've lost myself
Running from my past I'm praying feet don't fail me now
                                                               You tried to reach me but you just can't help me
I've lost my god damn mind
                                                               So long, goodbye
                                                                                              Α
It happens all the time
                                                               You tried to save me it won't work this time cause now
I can't believe I'm actually meant to be here
                                                               I've lost my fucking mind
Trying to consume
                                                               And there's no fucking time
The drug in me is you
                                                               I can't believe I'm actually meant to be here
And I'm so high on misery
                                                               Trying to consume
Can't vou see?

I got these questions always running through my head
                                                               Can't vou see?
