(com acordes na forma de C )
                                                                I tell my heart to just butt out,
Capostraste na 1ª casa
                                                                keep it's opinions to itself
My heart is telling me that you were gonna change, but I know
                                                                I should just listen to my head,
My heart is lying right to my face, yeah
                                                                 'cause it's the one who knows what's best
My heart is making up excuses for your ways, but I wish that
                                                                It tells me not to love you,
My heart knew when I should walk away.
                                                                But my heart says just forgive you
                                                                Oh but it's not thinking clearly
It let's me down, it helps me as I get back up off the ground
                                                                I wish that I could leave my While telling me that this is love but {\tt I} found heart out of this
It wasn't really on my side, now I think it's time
                                                                 C F
                                                                Leave my heart out of this
I tell my heart to just butt out,
                                                                Sometimes I wish you'd just shut up
keep it's opinions to itself
                                                                And let me think, I've had enough
I should just listen to my head,
                                                                I need to just make up my mind (make up my mind)
'cause it's the one who knows what's best
                                                                So that's why
It tells me not to love you,
                                                                (CFAmG)
But my heart says just forgive you
Oh but it's not thinking clearly
                                                                I tell my heart to just butt out,
I wish that I could leave my
                                                                keep it's opinions to itself
heart out of this
                                                                I should just listen to my head,

Leave my heart out of this
                                                                 'cause it's the one who knows what's best
                                                                It tells me not to love you,
\ensuremath{\mathrm{I'm}} done feeling like a stranger to myself, so \ensuremath{\mathrm{I}} know
                                                                But my heart says just forgive you
I've got to put all of my feelings on a shelf, yeah
                                                                Oh but it's not thinking clearly
It let's me down, it helps me as I get back up off the ground
                                                                I wish that I could leave my While telling me that this is love but I found heart out of this
                                                                         C F
                                                                Leave my heart out of this
