

Final Fantasy XIV: Endwalker - Flow

```
Fm7
                                                                          Gm7
                                                         Should you meet us, arise and surface thus tom:
              Eb
                                                                 Fm7
                                                                           Gm7
                                                         With your own beating heart wish them well
Intro: Db7M Cm7 Gbm7
[Primeira Parte]
                                                         [Refrão]
                                                         Gbm7
                      Bm7
                                                                       Fm7 A7
Welcome and well met, my brave little spark
                                                         Deep, dark, far away
   Bbm7
                                                                  D7M
How long you've wandered, burned bright as a star
                                                         I heard of your voice
                      G7
 Dm7
                                                                   Α
Oh, I have longed, waiting patiently
                                                         With your every choice
                                                                                  Bm7
      Cm7 Bbm7 Eb7
                                                               D
                                                                                            F7
All this time past every fate
                                                         Now our hands joined round the meaning you sought
                                                         Gbm7 Em7 A7
 Am7 D7
Now sing with me once more
                                                         I'll catch your tears
        Gm7
                                                                  D7M
Share of your life
                                                         Quench your fears with joy
         Fm7 Bb7
                                                         To your devotion
Far greater than memory
  Eb7M
                                                                 D
                                                                              Bm7
                                                                                     E7
                                                         Where in time all shall as hope be reborn all
It's loss and love words cannot hold
         C#7M Bb
Boundless, the tale overflows
                                                         ( Gbm7 Em7 A7 )
                                                         ( D7M A )
( Dm Bm7 E )
Db7M Cm7
And carries your light out to sea
                                                         [Refrão]
[Segunda Parte]
                                                         Gbm7 (Gbm7 Fm7 ) Em7 A7
                                                         Hush love, close your eyes
Remember the rain, near and far beloved
                                                                     D7M
   Bbm7
                      Fb7
                                                         Let them sleep all blind, in such a still night
Each drop a blessing, from heavens abov?
                                                          D Bm7 E7
                                                         It calls to unto dreams, be and all
                       G7
And how must time float on those waters
                                                         Gbm7 Em7 A7
Cm7 Bbm7 Eb7
B?came one, streams, rivers and lakes
                                                         Though you will weep
                                                                  D7M
      Am7
                 D7
                                                         The winds rise again
Reaching for the horizon and far beyond
                                                                Α
        Fm7 Bb7 Eb7M
                                                         For this journey's end
They carry onward, however changed with each brief reflection
                                                               D Bm7
                                                                                   F7
Db7M Bb
By setting sun, by storm's wake
                                                         Is but one step forward to tomorrow
        Cm7
                                                         [Final] Gbm7 Em7 A7
Till welcomed home to gentle sea
                                                                D7M A
                                                                Dm Fm7 B7
[Ponte]
                                                                D7M Db7
                                                                Gbm7 Em7 A7
       Fm7 Gm7
                                                                Cm7 D7 Dm7
Sinking deeper and deeper in calm embrace
     Fm7
                Gm7
```

Loving tide sweeping in, bear you down Acordes

