                                                              In a theatre not too far from here

                                                              Then we spent an hour talking about Shakespeare

                                                              I said "guess what, I was gonna leave this club"

I wanted to stay in that night

Got talked into one drink
                                                              Then I saw you

                                                              G
Headed down to the bar
                                                              Then I saw you
                  Em
In the street lights
                                                              She said "why don't you come and see my show tomorrow"
Where one drink turned into two
                                                              Em
                                                              just say you're name at the door
            Em
Two into three
                                                              Just hours later I was taking my seat
                                         C
All night had the jukebox play Stevie for me

When I got up about to leave
                                                              The curtain went up and there she was

                                                              She looked beautiful under the lights
I saw you

                                                              She said "I wasn't sure you'd come tonight, then I saw you"

Took my coat back off
                                                              Then I saw you

Talked myself into saying hello

Asked her where she had been
                                                              I saw you

Told me she was starring in a show
                                                              I saw you
