

Hannah Telle - Hurricanes

tom:

G

Skies above are darkening
 I don't know where you are
 Take away these hurtful things
 I thought we'd come so far

Now every evening I go out
 Sleeping by your door
 Hurricanes are blowing
 This tidal wave to shore

Present flooded by the past
 I dwell inside a jar
 Press my face against the glass
 Mourning every scar

Stumbling through your cemetery
 Craving to be craved
 Time will tell the awful truth

We won't escape this maze

But you are the one I adore

Always and forevermore
 We'll sail this ship through the storm

Old familiar feeling
 Of you slipping through my hands
 The sea will drag us out
 Until we're praying for the land

Don't you know that I can see
 The truth behind your lies

Wasn't me who gathered
 All those clouds inside your eyes

But you are the one I adore
 Always and forevermore
 We'll sail this ship through the storm

But you are the one I adore
 Always and forevermore
 We'll sail this ship through the storm
