

Hanson - Eitherside

Tom: C

Pillow for your head, we sleep on different sides
 And the space between where the best and the worst of us hide Accidental touch, across the great divide
 And break from the fighting are two cars that crash in the night
 Either side you're on Endless subway lights, well I will be home soon
 We live like the furniture, quietly filling up rooms You're not afraid of ghosts, and that's what I've become The affects of my coming and going have left you undone
 Either side you're on Either side you're on

And the way of watching you sleep is getting to me and I know you're all that I need Here in two worlds with the window between
 Either side you're on Either side you're on Night fades into day we used to lie awake and the love that we took was the same as the love that we gave white flags in our hands holding out for truths there's more hope in surrender than all of the battles we lose
 either side you're on either side, either side you're on either side you're on.

Acordes

