

Hardwell - Echo (feat. Jonathan Mendelsohn)

```
tom:
                                                                                                                                                                                  Ab (forma dos acordes no tom de G )
Capostraste na 1ª casa
                                                                                                                                    Em
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  Bm
Dreaming with no sound
Silence screams so loud
Trying to break through, anyway, to you
Tears fall like rain
And I can see your pain
                                                                                                  Em
For your love
I'd take the sun from the sky % \left\{ 1\right\} =\left\{ 1
I'd steal the moon from the night
And I will never let go
                                                                                                  Fm
For your love
I will climb any mountain
Stand at the top shouting out and You'll hear my love pouring down
Like an echo
The world is frozen now
Leaves all on the ground
```

Acordes

