

Hozier - Be

When the bodies starvin' at the border
                            tom:
Intro: Em Em C Am B
                                                                Are on TV givin' people the sack
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                Oh, when the sea rises to meet us
                                                                Oh, when there's nothin' left for you and I to do
 When all the worst we fear lets fall its weight
                                                                Oh, when there's nobody upstairs to receive us
When the gyre widens on and when the wave breaks
                                                                When I have no kind words left, love for you
When St. Peter loses cool and bars the gates
                                                                [Pré-Refrão]
When Atlas acts the maggot, makes his arms shake
                                                                Be, be, be, be, be
When the birds are heard again in their singin'
                                                                Be as you've always been
Once atrocity is hoarse from voicin' shame
                                                                Be, be, be, be, be
And when the earth is trembling on some new beginnin'
                                                                Be as vou've always been
With the same sweet shock of when Adam first came
                                                                (Lover, be good to me)
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                                [Refrão 2]
Be, be, be, be, be
                                                                Ah, be love in its disrepute (Lover, be good to me)
Be as you've always been Scorches the hillside and salts every root (Lover, be good to me)
Be, be, be, be
                                                                                             Am
                                                                And watches the slowin' and starvin' of troops
Be as you've always been
                                                                And, lover, be good to me (Lover, be good to me)
(Lover, be good to me)
                                                                Fm
[Refrão 1]
                                                                 Be there and just as you stand (Lover, be good to me)
                                                                 Or be like the rose that you hold in your hand (Lover, be
Be as you've always been (Lover, be good to me)
                                                                good to me)
Be like the love that discovered the sin (Lover, be good to
                                                                That will grow bold in a barren and desolate land
me)
                                                                Oh, lover, be good to me
That freed the first man and will do so again
                                                                Love, won't you be
And, lover, be good to me (Lover, be good to me)
                                                                Love, won't you be
Be that hopeful feeling when Eden was lost (Lover, be good to me)
                                                                Be as you've always been?
It's been deaf to our laughter since the master was crossed
                                                                Love, won't you be
(Lover, be good to me)
                                                                Love, won't you be
Which side of the wall really suffers that cost?
                                                                Be as you've always been?
Oh, lover, be good to me
                                                                                Fm
                                                                Love, won't you be
(Em Em)
                                                                Love, won't you be
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                Be as you've always been?
                                                                Love, won't you be
When the man who gives the order
                                                                Love, won't you be
Is born next time 'round on the boat sent back
                                                                             Fm
                                                                Be as you've always been?
