

Iron Maiden - To Tame a Land

Tom: C 4x

This is the intro riff (play twice):

Then the rhythm guitar plays this:

These are the chords played under the above riff:

Then the heavy part starts (play twice):

The lead guitar plays this overtop of the above part (twice):

Then the verse riff starts (play twice):

Then the rhythm guitar starts playing this (this is also the rhythm part for the solos):

Then one guitar plays the riff at the beginning of the heavy part twice, while the second guitar plays this (twice):

The lead guitar plays this overtop of the above part:

Then play the verse riff again twice. Now the rhythm guitar plays this:

Now one guitar plays the solo rhythm twice, while the other guitar plays the solo. Then they switch. See the bottom of this tab for the solos. After the solos there is a harmony interlude (one guitar plays the top notes, the other plays the bottom notes):

The lead guitar plays this overtop of the above part:

8x

4x

Then there is a really cool bass riff (I won't include it here because this is not a bass tab) with both guitars playing some power chords.

Both guitars play this twice.

Then it slows down and plays basically the same thing again:

After both guitars play that twice, one guitar plays it once more while the other guitar plays this:

After that it goes right back to the beginning riff and plays that once.

Here's the solos:

Then both guitars play this:

First solo:
