

j-hope - Sweet Dreams (feat. Miguel)

```
tom:
                                                                 I just wanna love you like, love you like, love you like that,
                D veah
        Yeah
                                                                 Love you like, love you like, love you like that, yeah
Sweet dreams come after hours
                                                                 Love me right, love me right, love me right back, yeah
Nothin' that's not allowed
                                                                 Love me right, love me right, love me right back
You should never sleep alone (sleep alone)
                                                                 You should never sleep alone
           Em7
                                                                            Em7
                                                                 'Cause I'll always take you home
'Cause I'll always take you home (yeah, right)
When there's nothin' left but diamond necklace (uh-huh)
                                                                 When there's nothing left but diamond necklace
                                                                 On you (uh-huh), girl (oh)
On vou. airl
I just wanna love you like, love you like, love you like that, You the only cover that I need when I'm cold (cold)
yeah
                                                                 You can have my body, with my heart and my soul (soul)
Love you like, love you like, love you like that, yeah
                                                                 You light up my life, you're like a diamond
Love me right, love me right, love me right back, yeah
                                                                 Shinin', shinin', shinin', yeah
Love me right, love me right, love me right back
                                                                 And we might never get to sleep tonight
You should never sleep alone
                                                                 I'll give you everything you need tonight
'Cause I'll always take you home
                                                                 This kind of love, I guarantee for life
When there's nothin' left but diamond necklace
                                                                 Dreams gonna be sweet tonight (oh, yeah)
On you, girl (oh)
                                                                 Sweet dreams come after hours
Any night, any time, you are my appetite
                                                                 Nothin' that's not allowed
Double vision, Gemini, and it goes like this
                                                                 You should never sleep alone (sleep alone)
Take you home, take it slow, till you bite your lip
                                                                             Fm7
                                                                 You should let me take you home (alright)
Got a movie in my mind and it goes like this
                                                                 Till there's nothing left but diamond necklace (yeah)
Closed curtains, open eyes
                                                                 On you, girl
         Fm7
Lay down your skin on mine
Leave all the rest to me
                                                                 I just wanna love you like, love you like, love you like that,
                                                                 veah
Yeah
                                                                 Love you like, love you like, love you like that, yeah
Sweet dreams come after hours (that's what they do)
                                                                 Love me right, love me right, love me right back, yeah
             Bm
Nothin' that's not allowed (uh-huh)
                                                                 Love me right, love me right, love me right back
You should never sleep alone (sleep alone)
                                                                 You should never sleep alone
           Fm7
                                                                            F<sub>m</sub>7
'Cause I'll always take you home (yeah, right)
                                                                 'Cause I'll always take you home
When there's nothin' left but diamond necklace
                                                                 When there's nothing left but diamond necklace
On you, girl
                                                                 On you, girl (oh)
Acordes
                    Bn
                                 En
                                       ukulele-chords.com
                          ukulele-chords.com
```