

Joe Brooks - Kaleidoscope

Tom: C

(com acordes na forma de Capotraste na 5ª casa G)
 She hangs wind chimes from her ears
 But I still can't tell which way her mood's blowing
 The shades of her eyes well don't let them fool you now,
 Cos naive is not her middle name

She's a kaleidoscope, a new shade for each new way in which she draws you close and then stumbles on your name
 She is a battlefield, except you're fighting with yourself
 To keep your heart of steel, from melting to the ground
 She is an ooh ooh... Kaleidoscope
 She is an ahhh oooo... Kaleidoscope

(G Em C)

A moat surrounds her fortress,
 her long technicolor hair she dangles almost to the ground,
 So that my finger tips always fall short of,
 The light that glows so sweet and blindly guides without a care

She's a Kaleidoscope, a new face for each new day in which she draws you close and then stumbles on your name
 She is an astronaut dancing freely through the air Between each telescope that tries to catch her if they dare Try to catch her?

Oh she comes and then she's gone,
 To the eye so kind for the heart so wrong?
 Oh she comes and then she's goes?
 To my eye so kind, but that's the one thing for sure she knows.

Oh kaleidoscope,
 a new shade for each new way in which she draws me close and then you stumble on my name

You are a battlefield, leaves me fighting with myself
 To keep my heart of steel, from melting to the ground
 She is an ooh ooh... Kaleidoscope
 She is an ahhh oooo... Kaleidoscope
