

Jonathan Wilson - Desert Raven

tom:

C

[Primeira Parte]

Fuzzy white haze in the asphalt was a lake
 And the sand it was a grayer shade of blue
 Spirits held desire while my eyes they did admire
 The evening that we only thought we knew
 Further out to sea I heard the birds wings over me
 The Vibrations in the air to my ears
 The sun was rising slinking low the day was saddled up to go
 The desert's lonely nightfall disappears

[Refrão]

The raven who flies through the desert skies
 Is wiser than you or me
 The birds have a peace, the stillness a sleeve

And the Desert Raven he has poetry

[Segunda Parte]

Close your eyes and fly to let the diamonds make the night
 Crystal blue will turn to ruby red
 The plants become a maze under the heavens stary hazel
 Pegasus he gallops overhead
 The buffalo at night they follow close the river's edge while Saffron slowly grows inside the caves
 The starry minds of hyacinth the moon below the sun's eclipse
 The sandy canyon floats beyond the waves

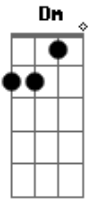

[Refrão]

The raven who flies through the desert skies
 Is wiser than you or me
 The birds have a peace, the stillness a sleeve
 And the Desert Raven he has poetry
