

Josh Garrels - White Owl

tom:

Intro: C Em E

When the night comes, and you don't know which way to go

Through the shadowlands, and forgotten paths you will find a road

Like an owl you must fly by moonlight with an open eye

And use your instinct as a guide, to navigate the way that lays before you

You were born to, take the greatest flight

Like a serpent and a dove you will have wisdom born of love

To carry visions from above, into the places no man dares to follow

Every hollow in the dark of night

Waiting for the light

Take the flame tonight

[Refrão]

Child the time, has come for you to go

You will never be alone

Every dream that you have been shown

Will be like living stone

Building you into a home

A shelter from the storm

(C Em C Em)

Like a messenger of peace, the beauty waits to be released

Upon the sacred path you keep, leading deeper into the unveiling

As your sailing, across the great divide

Like a wolf at midnight howls, you use your voice in darkest hours

To break the silence and the power, holding back the others from their glory

Every story will be written soon

The blood is on the moon

Morning will come soon

[Refrão]

Child the time, has come for you to go

You will never be alone

Every dream that you have been shown

Will be like living stone

Building you into a home

A shelter from the storm
