

Katy Perry - Teary Eyes

```
Em
                                                                                D
                                                       If the sun comes up, don't even care at all
                        tom:
Intro: C7M Em D
                                                       [Refrão]
  C7M Em Bm
                                                       Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
[Primeira Parte]
                                                        Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
             Em
                      D
                                                                                   C7M
Have you ever lost, lost the light in your life
                                                        Promise one day, baby, they're gonna dry
                  D C7M Em Bm
                                                                                  C7M Em Bm
            Em
Have you ever left, left yourself?behind
                                                       Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
                 D C7M
C7M Em
Have?you ever lied?and just replied "I'm fine"
                                                       C7M Em D C7M
                    Em
                           D
                                                    Bm Oh, oh
'Cause I?can see you've lost, lost the light in your life
                                                       Em Bm C7M
                                                       Oh, oh
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                       Fm
                                                        Just keep on dancin'
C7M Em Bm
C7M Em
             D
Wanna run like your mascara
                                                       With those teary eyes
            Em
Wine-stained lips talkin' to the mirror
                                                       [Ponte]
 C7M Em D C7M
If the sun comes up, don't even care at all
                                                       C7M Em
                                                       Wanna run like your mascara
[Refrão]
                                                                    Fm
                                                       Wine-stained lips talkin' to the mirror
C7M Em D C7M
Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
                                                       If the sun comes up, don't even care at all
Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
                                                       [Refrão]
     Bm
                            C7M
 Promise one day, baby, they're gonna dry
       D
                           C7M Em Bm
                                                       Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes (0h)
Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
                                                       Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
[Segunda Parte]
                                                       Em Bm
                                                                                   C7M
                                                        Promise one day, baby, they're gonna dry
                        D C7M Em Bm
                   Em
                                                       Em D
                                                                                   C7M
If love has left you with, with a question mark
                                                       Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
              Em D C7M Em Bm
                                                        C7M Em
If trust has left you fallin' in nobody's arms
                                                       Keep on dancin' Oh, oh
                                                             C7M
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                       Keep on dancin' Oh
            Em
                                                       Bm C7M
If you wanna hide like your emotions
                                                       Keep on dancin' Oh
                                                       Em D
                 Em Bm
                                                                                    C7M
                                                                                          Fm Bm
Heart can't break, it's already broken
                                                        Just keep on dancin' with those teary eyes
```

Acordes

