

Kehlani - Altar

Holdin' on to things you told me
                            tom:
                                                               Holdin' on to dr?ams you showed me
                                                               Holdin' on to anything from you
[Primeira Parte]
                                                               That you've been leaving here
Fresh white flowers and a new tea light
                                                               Now I believe I swear
Nine cups of water, still water
                                                                I can smell your perfume
Soon I'll see your face
                                                                Picking up your signal like a phonebooth
Don't know why I ever thought you were far away
                                                               Keeping you alive and I do it 'cause I want to
I should've known better
                                                                [Pré-Refrão]
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                                If I set a flame and I call your name
If I set a flame and I call your name
                                                                I'll fix you a plate, we can go to dinner
I'll fix you a plate, we can go to dinner
                                                               We can share a meal your way
We can share a meal your way
                                                               And I'll play you the songs that you used to play
And I'll play you the songs that you used to play
                                                                [Refrão]

                                                                So I put you on the altar, stay just a little bit longer, woah
So I put you on the altar, stay just a little bit longer, woah
                                                                Laid it out for ya', thought I felt you before
Laid it out for ya', thought I felt you before
                                                               Now you're closer, closer, woah (Now you're closer)
Now you're closer, closer, woah
                                                                So I put you on the altar, stay just a little bit longer, woah
So I put you on the altar, stay just a little bit longer, woah
                                                                Laid it out for ya', thought I felt you before
Laid it out for ya', thought I felt you before
                                                               But now you're closer, closer, woah, woah (Closer)
Now you'r? closer, closer, woah, woah
                                                                [Final] E A E A
