

kiran + Nivi - 8 Billion People

```
Alone in the kitchen
                            tom:
Intro: Em G C
                                                                Stop saying I'm funny Cause funny girls don't lock themselves
There are eight billion people in the world
                                                               Room to crv
But not a single one who understands
                                                               Doesn't matter how many friends I have Cause truth is, I'll
I might as well be the only living girl
                                                                Down at 12 A.M. and the only face I see is me
Wanna be happy but I feel embarrassed to say that I'm lonely
                                                                If only eight billion people could help a bit
Imagine someone caring for me every day and night
              D
                                                               Crowded parties, busy streets Hanging with my friends
But now I don't have anyone to ask if I'm alright
                                                                Fireworks on New Year's Eve
Stop saying I'm pretty Cause pretty girls don't spend Friday
nights
                                                               But I still feel so lonely Long drives in his Benz, watching sunsets Seeming like it's Alone in the kitchen
Stop saying I'm funny Cause funny girls don't lock themselves
                                                                Family time on the weekends
Room to cry
                                                                But I still feel so lonely But I still feel so lonely
                                                                Stop saying I'm pretty Cause pretty girls don't spend Friday Doesn't matter how many friends I have. Cause truth is, I'll
                                                               nights
                                                               Alone in the kitchen
Down at 12 A.M. and the only face I see is me
                                                                Stop saying I'm funny Cause funny girls don't lock themselves
If only eight billion people could help a bit in a
Tryna cope with all the insecurities
                                                               Room to crv
Seeing my friends having the best lives don't make me feel Doesn't matter how many friends I have Cause truth is, I'll better Imagine someone caring for me every day and night (Every
                                                               Down at 12 A.M. and the only face I see is me
                                                                If only eight billion people could help a bit
But now I don't have anyone to ask if I'm alright
Stop saying I'm pretty Cause pretty girls don't spend Friday
```

nights

Acordes

