

Lana Del Rey - Fine China

Tom: G

[Primeira Parte]

I wore diamonds for the birth of your baby
 For the birth of your son
 On the same day my husband to be
 Packed his things to run
 Was bittersweet to say the least
 One life begins one comes undone
 I've always been a strong woman of faith
 Strong like a tree but the unlucky one

[Pré-Refrão]

I'm going down, now
 With all of my

[Refrão]

Fine china and fresh linen
 All of my dresses with them tags still on them
 Fine china and dull silver
 My white horses and my ivory almonds
 I guess they really got the best of us, didn't they?
 They said that love was enough but it wasn't
 The earth shattered, the sky opened
 The rain was fire but we were wooden

[Segunda Parte]

I wore diamonds for the day of our wedding
 For our day in the sun
 On the same day my mother to be said she wouldn't come
 It's always been that way with me
 No time for change no time for fun
 It's always been that way it seems
 One love begins one comes undone

[Pré-Refrão]

I'm going down, now
 With all of my

[Refrão]

Fine china and fresh linen
 All of my dresses with them tags still on them
 Fine china and dull silver
 My white horses and my ivory almonds
 I guess they really got the best of us, didn't they?
 They said that love was enough but it wasn't
 The earth shattered, the sky opened
 The rain was fire but we were wooden

[Ponte]

All of my all of my fine china
 All of my all of my fine china
 All of my all of my fine china
 Blue uh, blue

[Refrão]

Fine china and fresh linen
 All of my dresses with them tags still on them
 Fine china and dull silver
 My white horses and my ivory almonds
 I guess they really got the best of us, didn't they?
 They said that love was enough but it wasn't
 The earth shattered, the sky opened
 The rain was fire but we were wooden

Fine china, fine china, fine china
 Fresh linen, fresh linen, fresh linen
 Ah, ah, ah

Fine china, fine china, fine china
 Fresh linen, fresh linen, fresh linen
 Ah, ah, ah

Acordes

