

Led Zeppelin - Boogie With Stu

Tom: A

This song shows how great a percussionist John Bonham is. His wierd little drum beat is accentuated by Jimmy Page's "Rock N Roll" like riff. To play this song, Page uses an acoustic 6-string guitar. The guitar is pretty much the same through the whole song.

I don't no Tutti-Fruiti-
No Life Rock
Now come on baby just rock rock rock

Led Zeppelin's Boogie with Stu

figure 1

allow this last A to ring into beat 1 of next bar.
figure 2

E
e|----| And this is the basic riff played
throughout the whole
b|----| song. Unfortunately, I do not own a mandolin, so I can't
g|--1--| post the mandolin solo.
d|--2--|
a|--2--|
E|--0--|

figure 4

This is one of those songs where Robert tends to mumble the lyrics, so these lyrics aren't totally accurate

figure 5

Figure 6

Leaving town, now, baby
(I'd) leave before I call
Yeah Yeah Yeah Yeah Darlin'
Leave before I go home
I don't want no Tutti-Fruiti-
No-life rock
Now come on baby just rock rock rock

Figure 7

allow to ring for two bars

and now for the order: figure 1 4x
figure 2 2x
figure 1 2x
figure 3 2x
figure 4 6x
figure 5 2x
figure 4 2x
figure 7 1x

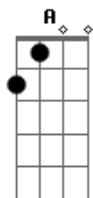

This order applies to the first verse. As the song progresses, figures one and four are interchanged occasionally (as are 2 and 5 as well and 3 and 6, respectively).

Yeah ya ya ya honey,
We can shake them on down...
Whoa wo wo wo Darlin'
We just go on and ride...
Ahhhhhh
Ooooh... my head..
ROCK ON!

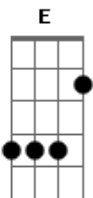

Hey Babe, Hey Babe (x4)

I don't no Tutti-Fruiti-
No-Life Rock...
Now come on baby just rock rock rock
