

Little Mix - Grown

```
Tom: C
                                                                You're trying way too hard and I don't need your flattery
Intro: C C
                                                                Now, it's funny how the tables turn
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                I'm sitting back, baby, watching you burn
Hold up, wait, you used to be a frenemy
                                                                No regrets it's a lesson learned
Back then, boy, you didn't even notice me
                                                                'Cause what you think ain't my concern
Why now, you tryna get a hold of me?
                                                                [Pré-Refrão]
We never even spoke so what makes you think you know me?
                                                                About time that I let you know
It's funny how the tables turn
                                                                My ride and I assume control
I'm sitting back, baby, watching you burn
                                                                You blew it, baby, years ago
No regrets, it's a lesson learned
                                                                Can't get with me, now I'm grown
'Cause what you think ain't my concern
                                                                [Refrão]
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                 C
                                                                Grown now, grown now
About time that I let you know
                                                                Don't you know that I'm grown now, grown now?
My ride and I assume control
                                                                Don't you know that I can hold my own?
You blew it, baby, years ago
                                                                Boy, you missed the boat
Can't get with me, now I'm grown
                                                                Can't get with me, now I'm grown
[Refrão]
                                                                [Quarta Parte]
Grown now, grown now
                                                                Hev
Don't you know that I'm grown now, grown now?
                                                                You didn't want me it took too long
Don't you know that I can hold my own?
                                                                You didn't want me and now I'm grown
                                                                Oh, what a shame, baby, now I'm grown
Boy, you missed the boat
Can't get with me, now I'm grown
                                                                [Refrão]
[Terceira Parte]
                                                                Grown now, grown now
Your voice dropped, you thought that you could handle me
                                                                Don't you know that I'm grown now, grown now?
                                                                Don't you know that I can hold my own?
You played mean and now you tryna holla me
You're washed up and now I'm in a different league
                                                                Boy, you missed the boat
                                                                Can't get with me, now I'm grown
```

Acordes

