

Mad Honey - Blue & You

```
tom:
                                                                 Gotta be far from me
Intro: Am7 F7M Am7 F7M
                                                                 Cause some things never change
[Primeira Parte]
                                                                   If there is a reason I'll be
Am7
 Don't worry baby
                                                                 Living without you
            F7M
I've been thinking about it
                                                                 Please don't fade away
             C7M
You've got a hand to hold
                                                                 Even if I do
When I'm sleeping on the floor
                                                                 [Refrão]
Am7
 Hiding your face from me
                                                                 I still believe it's true
       F7M
                                                                     C7M
Lift a finger to the heat
                                                                 And I will believe you
        C7M
It's the words we speak
                                                                 If all the world remains this shade of blue
And the dangerous things we mean
                                                                 Then I'll forget it all but you
                                                                 [Pós-Refrão]
[Refrão]
                                                                 It's all blue and you
I still believe it's true
                                                                      Am
                                                                 All blue and you
And I will believe you
                                                                       Am
                                                                 All blue and you
If all the world remains this shade of blue
                                                                       Αm
                                                                 All blue and you
Then I'll forget it all but you
                                                                 ( Am7 F7M Am7 F7M )
[Pós-Refrão]
                                                                 [Solo 2] Am7 F7M
           \mathsf{Am}
                                                                        Am7 F7M
It's all blue and you
     Am
           G
                                                                                Am
All blue and you
                                                                  Maybe we'll make it out alive
     Am
                                                                              \mathsf{Am}
All blue and you
                                                                   Coming to terms we're gonna be wild
     Am
All blue and you
                                                                 [Refrão Final]
[Solo 1] Am7 F7M
       Am7 F7M
                                                                 I still believe it's true
                                                                 And I will believe you
[Segunda Parte]
                                                                   C7M
                                                                 If all the world remains this shade of blue
  Coming to terms with all
                                                                 Then I'll forget it all but you
Your wildest feelings
Acordes
            ukulele-chords.com
                          ukulele-chords.com
                                       ukulele-chords.com
```

C7M