

My Chemical Romance - Kill All Your Friends

```
(Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
Tom: G
                                                              And we all get together when we bury our friends.
  Verse 1:
             G
Well you can hide a lot about yourself,
                                                              (Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
     Em
            C G
But honey, what're you gonna do?
                                                              It's been eight bitter years since I've been seeing your face.
           G
And you can sleep in a coffin,
                                                              (Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
But the past ain't through with you.
                                                              And you're walking away, and I will die in this place.
            G
'Cause we are all a bunch of liars.
                                                              Verse 3:
Tell me, baby, who do you wanna be?
                                                              You'll never take me alive.
And we are all about to sell it,
                                                              You'll never take me alive.
             Em
'Cause it's tragic with a capital T.
                                                              Do what it takes to survive,
Let it be, Let it be, Let it be!
                                                              'Cause I'm still here.
'Cause we all wanna party when the funeral ends.
                                                              You'll never get me alive.
Bm
(Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
                                                              You'll never take me alive.
And we all get together when we bury our friends.
                                                              Do what it takes to survive,
(Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
                                                              And I'm still here.
           C
It's been eight bitter years since I've been seeing your face.
                                                              You'll never take me alive.
(Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
                                                              You'll never get me alive.
And you're walking away, and I will die in this place.
                                                              Do what it takes to survive,
                                                              And I'm still here.
Verse 2:
                                                              You'll never get me.
Sometimes you scrape and sink so low,
                                                              (Still here!)
I'm shocked at what you're capable of.
                                                              You'll never take me.
        G D
                                                              (Still here!)
And if this is a coronation,
                                                              You'll never get me alive.
I ain't feeling the love.
'Cause we are all a bunch of animals
                                                              'Cause we all wanna party when a funeral ends.
                 C
      Fm
That never paid attention in school.
                                                              (Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
So tell me all about your problems;
                                                              And we all get together when we bury our friends.
I was killing before killing was cool.
                                                              (Ba-ba-ba, ba-ba-ba)
You're so cool, You're so cool, So cool!
                                                              It's been ten fucking years since I've been seeing
                                                                          D Em
                                                              Your face 'round here.
'Cause we all wanna party when the funeral ends.
                                                              And you're walking away, and I will drown in the fear.
Acordes
```