

Nancy Wilson - Sophisticated Lady

```
Tom: D
                                                                                  Db7 Fdim
                                                                                                      Gbm Ab
                                                            Never thinking of tomorrow, nonchalant
  Fdim Em
                    C7
                         B7 Bb7 A7
                                                            Db7
                                                                      Bbm
They say into your early
A7 D7 Db7 C7
                         life romance came
B7 E7
                                                            Diamonds shining
                                                                                     Db Fdim Gbm
                                                            Gdim
                                                                  Ab7
And in this heart of yours burned a flame
                                                            Dancing, dining with some man in a restaurant
                 A A A A7 D Cdim A7
                                                                          G7
                                                              Α7
                                                            Is that all you really want
A flame that flick-ered one day and died away
                 C7 B7 Bb7 A7
                                                                  C7 B7 Bb7 A7
Then, with disillusion deep in your eyes
                                                            No, Sophistcated Lady
                                                            D A7 D7 D67 C7 B7
I know you miss the love you lost long ago
 A7
              D7 Db7 C7 B7 E7
You learned that fools in love soon grow wise
                                                                        A7/13- A7
                                  A7 D
                                                   Gbm Ab
               A A A
                              Α
                                                            And when nobody is nigh, you cry
The years have changed you somehow. I see you now
                                                                Em G D
                                                            You cry, you cry
Smoking and drinking
```

Acordes

