

Nico Collins - Head In Her Heart

tom:

Intro: Eb Bb

She has her head in her heart

And a broken body

Never wrong but she always says sorry

Takes the pain and throws away her pride

For a man with a hole in the middle of his chest

Promising herself that she'll only see the best

So she stays and gives away her life

Paint over the walls now

Even though they're only gonna fall down

Every night it's just a fight

No end, no end

But she swears it's gonna work out

Even when the screams are getting so loud

Trying to find the missing light

Again, and again

Cuz it's easier to keep

Holding onto something sweet

In her mind the more he lies she justifies but why?

She has her head in her heart

In a broken body

Never wrong but she always says sorry

Takes the pain and throws away her pride

For a man with a hole in the middle of his chest

Promising herself that she'll only see the best

So she stays and gives away her life

Cigarettes on the steps

Walking outside just to catch her breath

He's right where she wants him, there in her bed

Searching for something that's already dead

Oh She's losing herself

Slowly she turns into somebody else

Acordes

Finding her worth through a love made in hell

Playing the cards she's been dealt

No matter the price she wears it well

She has her head in her heart

In a broken body

Never wrong but she always says sorry

Takes the pain and throws away her pride

For a man with a hole in the middle of his chest

Promising herself that she'll only see the best

So she stays and gives away her life

Cuz it's easier to keep

Holding onto something sweet

In her mind the more he lies she justifies but why?

Is this really what she chose

Wide awake but comatose

In his mind the more she dies he feels alive but why?

She has her head in her heart

In a broken body

Never wrong but she always says sorry

Takes the pain and throws away her pride

For a man with a hole in the middle of his chest

Promising herself that she'll only see the best
