

Pedro Vulpe - No Distance

It won?t be the last time
                             tom:
                                                                  If it?s the world's end
                                                                       Abm7
It?s been all days of lasting evenings
                                                                  I?ll know how to start over
And dawn breaks too late
                                                                  I will taste peace, I will see clearer
As the weight of the world
                                                                  There?s no distance left to run
Punishes my knees
                                                                         D A
                                                                       No work yet to be done
When it?s all rest
                                                                  The reward is to keep on walking by
But there?s no dreaming
                                                                  Your own path, your own song ED
Or the words come to fail
                                                                  ?Cause there?s no distance left to run
The movement of my lungs
                                                                  ( E D A )
( E D A )
( E D A )
( E D A )
    D A
Will soon remember me
     E D
There?s no distance left to run
     No work yet to be done
                                                                  If it?s the world's end
                                                                       Abm7
                                                                  I?ll know how to start over
The reward is to keep on walking by
Your own path, your own song E D
                                                                  I will taste peace, I will see clearer
                                                                  E D A
There?s no distance left to run
?Cause there?s no distance left to run
                                                                      No work yet to be done
May your chest feel the warmth
                                                                  The reward is to keep on walking by
Lay down your arms, now it?s safe
                                                                  Your own path, your own song
To let it hurt out of yourself
  D
                                                                  ?Cause there?s no distance left to run
And then be healed \stackrel{\textstyle \scriptstyle E}{} D
                                                                  [Final] E D A
I?ve been trying (trying!)
To reach some comfort in my eyes
It?s not the first
