Portugal The Man - Plastic Soldiers

And yesterday tread on water
  Am
Everything cares weight
                                                             Am Em G
                                                                            D
                                                             I hate to be so shallow
Everything is the same
                                                             I want to get deeper in, swim deeper in
              Am
                                                             But I can't find the water
Within us all together
                                                             I cant seem to find my way
Everyone cares weight
                                                             Could it be we got lost in the summer
Everyone is the same
                                                             I know you know that its over
And we are all together
                                                             And yesterday, treading water
      Em
Am Em G D
I can't keep my head up
                                                             Could it be we got lost in the summer
Am Em
I'd like to step on my friends
                                                             I know you know that its over
Step on my friends
   Em G
                                                             But yesterday treading water
But I can't keep my head up
                                                             C
Treading water
I can't see to keep my head
     Em G
                                                             You can drift along you've got the time
                                                             The rest of us will live and die
Could it be we got lost in the summer
                                                             Like plastic soldiers
I know you know that its over
                                                             We're only growing older?
And yesterday, treading water
                                                             \mathsf{Am}
