

Post Malone - Lemon Tree

```
tom:
                                                                (Am C Am C)
                Bm (forma dos acordes no tom de Am )
Capostraste na 2ª casa
                                                                [Segunda Parte]
            [Primeira Parte]
                                                                  Blood on my hands, I hop on th? fence, I double down
  Couldn't fall asleep all night
                                                               I swing and I miss, a kick in th? ribs, in trouble now
I try with all my might
                                                               Came from the dirt, back in the ground, then I die
I thought I knew what you want
                                                               But I'ma survive, I got my own ways, oh
 It isn't all that nice
                                                                [Pré-Refrão]
But I guess you will suffice
                                                                 Could you be
It's hard to know what you want
                                                               A little less sour and rotten by the hour?
[Pré-Refrão]
                                                               And my heart's rotten too
                                                                                                    Dm
    Could you be
                                                                 And every film I watch, I'm on the side of the bad guy
A little less sour and rotten by the hour?
                                                                [Refrão]
And my heart's rotten too
                                                                So turn around and show me that I'm better
 And every film I watch, I'm on the side of the bad guy
                                                                                  Am
                                                                Some people got an apple, some people got a tangerine
[Refrão]
                                                                Lookin' 'round and all I see is people happy with what they're
So turn around and show me that I'm better given
                  Αm
                                                               Life is pretty sweet, I'm told
Some people got an apple, some people got a tangerine
                                                                I guess I'm shit outta luck, growin' a lemon tree
Lookin' 'round and all I see is people happy with what they're
                                                                                    C
                                                                I'm gonna burn it down and grow me somethin' better, yeah
Life is pretty sweet, I'm told
                                                                [Final] Am C Am C
I guess I'm shit outta luck, growin' a lemon tree
                                                       E7
Acordes
      Вn
                                      ukulele-chords.com
```

I'm gonna burn it down and grow me somethin' better, yeah